

Local builder selected to state NCHBA chair position

The North Carolina Home Builders Association has selected Sean Sullivan, of Living Stone Construction, to be the Chairman of the NC Build-Pac committee for 2010. “With the current political climate, the volatile economic condition, and the fluctuation of the housing market, this is poised to be the most critical election cycle we have seen in decades. After serving as Vice-Chair this last year, I have seen how closely the legislative agenda affects the building industry. While contributions were down in 2009, requests for help were up as incumbents seek re-election.” says Sullivan.

The Political Action Committee of the North Carolina Home Builders Association (NC BUILD-PAC) is a non-partisan committee organized for the specific purpose of raising funds to support pro-housing candidates of all parties at the state and local levels of government.

Contributions to BUILD-PAC are an investment in the future of your business and the home building industry as a whole. It is essential that we are able to support the candidates that understand and will fight for the issues important to us when they are in office. Candidates who receive support from BUILD-PAC know our critical issues and understand the depth of that support because it comes from thousands of builders and associates across the state. NC BUILD-PAC contributions are the key to our being able to promote a pro-housing agenda in the legislature and local governments statewide.

Sean Sullivan served as the President of the Asheville Home Builders Association in 2008. He is an Accredited Builder, Certified Green Professional, and Energy Star partner. His company builds custom homes that focus on quality and efficiency and whose mission is to “take our clients dreams beyond their expectations.” You can learn more about LSC by visiting their website at www.livingstoneconstruction.com.
